Homecoming salutes Hawkins

There were many high points during CCC's Homecoming Week, but one that captured headlines was the visit of Wilbur F. Hawkins, executive director of the Lower Mississippi Delta Development Commission, who was honored with "Wilbur Hawkins Day."

The event, which garnered local, state, and Mid-South attention, also featured Hawkins as Grand Marshal of the homecoming parade.

"Homecoming has always been a very special event for Coahoma Junior College," noted President M. C. Martin. "But this year was even more memorable, because of our official name change July 1. As Coahoma Community College, our name now more accurately reflects our mission and goals."

Starting off a long day, Hawkins presided over a press conference on the front lawn of the CCC campus. Accompanying her husband, Mrs. Hawkins was also a guest of CCC, along with many local and state dignitaries, board members, and other officials. (A video is available of the press conference.)

Hawkins, a native of Knoxville, Tenn., is responsible for coordinating a ten-year strategic economic development plan for a seven-state, 214-county area, including Illinois, Kentucky, Missouri, Tennessee, Arkansas, Louisiana, and Mississippi.

He served for eleven years with the Tennessee Valley Authority, holds a B.A. degree in Political Science from the University of Tennessee, and is a former All-American track star.

From the campus, the entourage moved to downtown

Clarksdale for the Homecoming parade, where cheerleaders, bands, floats, pretty ladies, handsome men, and playful children graced the parade route, to the delight of an enthusiastic crowd.

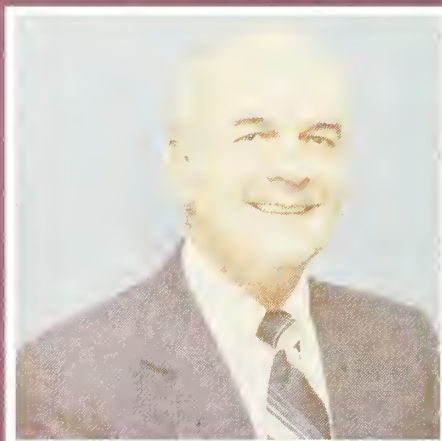

To continue the festivities on the last day of homecoming, Hawkins attended a luncheon in his honor and later the AHS football game. The evening program consisted of recognizing alumni, a tribute to Hawkins, the football game between the CCC Tigers and the Northwest Rangers, and the halftime ceremony, with a presentation of the CCC Homecoming queen and her court.

The business of operating a school has all of the problems associated with any other segment of society. Guidance from those with experience and dedication is necessary. All of our Board Members are dedicated and committed to the task of promoting excellence in secondary and post secondary education. These four superintendents, with well over 100 years of combined service in education, assist the appointed executives of the institution in every way. They are always there.

For your willingness to always do just a little more, other Board Members, administrators, faculty, staff and students salute you.

Then and Now

Yesterday

A new name!

Coahoma Junior College officially changed its name July 1, 1989, to Coahoma Community College as voted on by the Coahoma Community College Board of Trustees and the Mississippi State Board for Community and Junior Colleges. CCC boasts of a new seal to go along with its new name. The seal incorporates both old and new symbols. The open book of knowledge on the triangle background with the lamp of knowledge is a tradition at the post secondary institution. The newness involves the new circle encompassing the new name, Coahoma Community College. Only one of the 15 community and junior colleges remaining statewide, Jones Junior College, has yet to change its name.

A week of merriment at Aggie High is a tradition for Aggians. This week is set aside to enhance the true tiger spirit that is a part of all Aggians. Without a doubt, tigers know who they are, but this week helps to bring into play the heart felt spirit that is captured in the souls of all true tigers, far and near.

The week begins with Kiddy Day. This day is celebrated by everyone — from the principal to the domestic engineers. Next, Tacky, then, Dress-Up Day on Wednesday, International Day, Career Day, and finally, Maroon and White Day (color parade day). On Wednesday Mr. and Miss A.H.S. are crowned and on Saturday (Super Saturday) during half-time, Miss Homecoming is crowned. Along with the crowning, there is entertainment from the CCC-AHS band and other professionals.

Homecoming week is an exceptional time for all to enjoy, to celebrate, and to captivate the tiger energy force.

During this week, several other events take place. Friday night there is a bonfire; Saturday morning, breakfast with the tigers (football players); then, off to the parade through the streets of downtown Clarksdale. Also, during the week, display competition is ongoing. There are first place winners, but no one is a loser.

Everyone is drenched with tiger spirit the entire week. Then, Monday comes.

Instruments In Variety

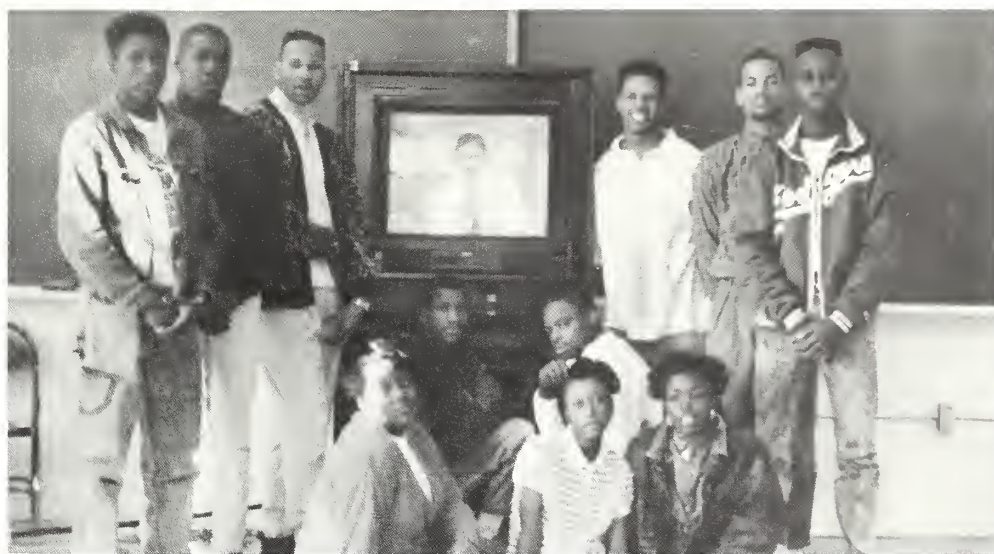

In October, Coahoma Community College and Agricultural High School will offer a course known as CHIDA — Consumer Homemaking in Depressed Areas. The program is designed for youths and adults not enrolled in school, and living in economically depressed areas, and will assist consumers in upgrading their sewing, cooking and housing skills. CHIDA will be offered Monday and Wednesday nights beginning Oct. 16, from 5 to 7 p.m., in the Sandy Bayou Building. Anyone interested may contact Joan Griffin (left) or Sadie Wade at 383-2389; or 624-5679.
